The Course

The Old Course

The Old Course is the original layout at Hainault London Golf Club, designed in the early 1900s by five-time Open Champion J.H. Taylor. Set across gently rolling, elevated ground on the edge of Hainault Forest, this classic parkland course is rich in character and tradition. Its tree-lined fairways, natural undulations and well-protected greens place an emphasis on accuracy, course management and thoughtful shot-making, offering a rewarding challenge for golfers of all abilities.

The London Course

Also designed by J.H. Taylor, the London Course is the longer of the two layouts and provides a more modern, open parkland experience. With wider fairways, strategically positioned trees and a more generous routing, the course encourages confident driving while still rewarding intelligent play. Its flowing design and increased length make it a popular choice for society days, combining challenge with playability in a relaxed and enjoyable setting.
